

OPEN SEARCH
IGHS EDUCATION MS IN GLOBAL HEALTH SCIENCES
COURSE DIRECTOR, SOCIO-CULTURAL AND BEHAVIORAL DETERMINANTS OF HEALTH

The Institute for Global Health Sciences Master of Science Program is searching for an educator to teach Global Health Sciences 202D Socio-cultural and Behavioral Determinants of Health. The structure of the course includes lectures, guest lectures, small group discussion, project, and exams.

The ideal candidate will have had experience in research and education in Socio-cultural and Behavioral Determinants of Health with a global health focus. For the purposes of our program, we define global health to be international or domestic but with a focus on health equity. Previous teaching experience is preferred. In addition, IGHS Education is committed to supporting efforts to advance equitable access to education and outreach at all levels and as a result encourages and values applicants from diverse and underrepresented communities.

The course will be offered in the fall quarter. Expected course enrollment is 35-40 students. Two teaching assistants are provided for the course.

In addition to teaching responsibilities, all faculty in the MS in Global Health Sciences are required to serve as academic advisors for approximately 2-3 students per year and as capstone project readers for another 2-3 students per year. Faculty are required to attend quarterly faculty meetings, a yearly retreat, and qualifying and comprehensive exams. All faculty receive student evaluations and program reviews yearly.

The position of Course Director is not offered as a campus faculty appointment and as a result is only open to candidates already employed in the UC system. The selected Course Director will receive a stipend of $18,000-19,000 with potential step-up depending academic rank or prior experience.

The Master of Science in Global Health is a one-year, four-quarter program designed for those who wish to acquire expertise and develop leadership skills in the field of global health. Graduates are prepared for careers in research, policy, organizational leadership, program management and evaluation, and academia.

TO APPLY

Send a Letter of Interest and CV to Inez Bailey (Inez.bailey@ucsf.edu) by May 19, 2023.